I Love My Credit Union Day is Almost Here!

Credit unions across the country are celebrating I Love My Credit Union Day—a time to recognize the values that make credit unions unique.

Credit unions were founded on a simple idea: people helping people. As not-for-profit financial cooperatives, they're built to serve their members rather than generate profits for shareholders. That member-first approach is why credit unions continue to make a difference in the lives of millions of people every day.

Whether it's putting people before profits, strengthening local communities, giving every member a voice, or empowering people through financial education, credit unions are rooted in values that have stood the test of time. They provide more than financial services—they create opportunities, build relationships, and help communities thrive.

We invite you to celebrate I Love My Credit Union Day with us. Follow us on social media throughout the month as we highlight some of the many reasons credit unions continue to make a positive impact every day.

Financial Tip of the Quarter: Don't Let Scammers Fool You

Scammers are getting more convincing, using phone calls, text messages, and emails that appear to come from trusted organizations—including your financial institution. This tactic, known as spoofing, is designed to trick you into sharing personal information or sending money.

If you receive an unexpected message asking you to verify account information, share a security code, or make an urgent payment, take a moment to pause. Instead of responding directly, contact the organization using a phone number or website you know is legitimate. A few extra minutes to verify can help protect your personal and financial information.

Want to learn more about how spoofing works and the warning signs to watch for? Visit our website to read our latest blog and discover practical tips to help keep your accounts safe.
