Credit Union Youth Month

April is Credit Union Youth Month, and it's a chance to focus on something we care a lot about—helping young savers get started.

Learning how to save, setting goals, and even making that first deposit may seem small, but those moments stick. They build confidence early and shape the way kids think about money as they grow.

We also get to be part of that learning in a bigger way through programs like Dollars & Sense with United Way, where students walk through real-life financial decisions and see how those choices play out. It's hands-on, eye-opening, and something we're proud to be part of.

And when they're ready to take that next step, our youth accounts are there to give them a place to start—simple, approachable, and built to grow with them.

We get to see those first steps happen every day, and it's something we never take lightly.

Because it's not just about saving money. It's about helping them feel ready for what comes next.

What We've Been Working On

Behind the scenes, we've been working on making everyday banking a little easier—especially when it comes to your mobile wallet.

What used to require a call to set up can now be done in just a few simple steps on your own. It's a small change, but one that gives you more convenience and control when adding your card to your device. We know it's often the little things that make the biggest difference—saving you time, removing extra steps, and making things feel more seamless from the start.

And while this update may seem simple, it's part of a bigger focus for us—improving the everyday moments you don't always think about, but rely on.

Because sometimes, the best improvements are the ones that make things feel effortless.
